We hereby confirm that we do not procure, process or store any polyfluorinated alkyl substances (PFAS) in our company and that no PFAS are processed in our outsourced production processes (PCB assembly, production of camera housing parts).

We also confirm that our supplier qualification process ensures that we do not procure any items containing substances that are banned in the USA, the EU, China or Singapore. We therefore also rule out the possibility that purchased components of our articles contain PFAS that are banned in the countries in question. This applies to commercial goods as well as all purchased parts that we obtain as finished goods from specialist retailers and install in our products (electronic components, adhesives, paints, stickers, heat-conducting components, etc.).

We are currently unable to make any binding statements regarding non-prohibited PFAS in our purchased parts, as we are at the end of the relevant supply chains and do not have complete information on the ingredients, some of which are also subject to the confidentiality of our suppliers.

We are aware of the ongoing ban initiatives in the EU and the USA and we attach great importance to minimizing the associated risks in design and procurement. In concrete terms, this means that we make our suppliers aware of these ban initiatives and urge them to minimize risks. Above all, however, we give priority to sourcing from suppliers who are established in the EU and US markets and who therefore have a vested interest in complying with the restrictions already in place there and those that will apply in the future.
